- 2) learn ways to incorporate Bibliotherapy into play therapy treatment goals.
- 3) learn several play therapy interventions that incorporate books.
- 4) discover how to effectively incorporate board games in play therapy treatment goals.
- 5) engage in board game play (popular and therapeutic).
- 6) create therapeutic based board games to support play therapy sessions.

OPTIONAL-PLAY THERAPY SESSION (12:30-1:30)
1 Clock Hour CE Certificate Awarded for those participating only.

PLAY THERAPY SESSION:

DESCRIPTION: This session provides an opportunity for play therapists to share and discuss books that have therapeutic values with child clients during play therapy sessions. During the session participants will expand on the materials presented by Dr. Grant in the morning session on Bibliotherapy to develop intervention strategies to incorporate into the play therapy sessions that can incite therapeutic progress.

Participants are asked to come prepared to discuss at least one book during this time that have therapeutic value in the playroom.

OBJECTIVE: At the completion of this session participants will identify one play therapy intervention that supports the therapeutic progress using Bibliotherapy.

Facilitator: Dawn White, LPC, RPT: Ms. White after 23 years as a science teacher in middle and high school classrooms in Chesterfield County, she embarked on a new professional path and started a second Master's degree at Columbia International University, completing a dual degree in clinical counseling and marriage and family therapy in 2010. It was during the second Child and Adolescent Therapy course in early 2010, that she attended her first SCAPT Conference and recognized how her experience as a teacher was being uniquely merged with her new career as a Licensed Professional Counselor. She began a small private practice in Chesterfield County in November 2010. Within two months she realized the value of the extra training in play therapy as over half her clientele were children and families. While she presently continues to practice privately, Dawn joined PFM Counseling in January 2013, as an in-house therapist at Palmetto Family Medicine in Cheraw. In February 2015, Dawn became a Registered Play Therapist, and she is in the final phase of certification as an Emotionally Focused Therapist. She serves as the current SCAPT President Elect.
